

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for washing contaminants from a coated surface of a material comprises an inclined substantially planar surface up which the material is passed, an inlet for the introduction of wash solution at the upper part of the 5 planar surface and pressure applying means for holding the material in full contact with the surface.